Ben Franklin

“Yes, we must, indeed, all hang together, or most assuredly we shall all hang separately”

Benjamin Franklin is considered a founding father of the United States. A major figure in early colonial life, he contributed to the Declaration of Independence, and served as ambassador to France during the revolutionary war where he secured critical support for the war effort. Portraying Franklin, Terry Kutz seeks to “entertain, educate, and improve understanding of what went on at that time”.
